About the Huntington

The Huntington Library, Art Collections, and Botanical Gardens was founded in 1919 by Henry E. Huntington—an entrepreneur, philanthropist, and chief architect of a decade of explosive growth in Southern California. Today, The Huntington is the most heavily used independent research library outside of the Library of Congress and the fourth-most visited cultural institution in Los Angeles County. The Huntington estate encompasses 207 acres and includes: The Huntington Art Gallery, the Huntingtons’ original residence built in 1911; the newly expanded 45,000-square-foot Virginia Steele Scott Galleries of American Art; the MaryLou and George Boone Gallery, which houses special exhibitions; the original 1919 Library, with major additions that include a public exhibition hall and research complex; and 120 acres of botanical gardens landscaped into a dozen themed areas. The Huntington’s mission is to encourage research and promote education in the arts, humanities, and botanical sciences.
